

North West Research Radiography Support Network (NWRRSN)

The NWRRSN has been established to provide a supportive interesting research environment to develop research radiography within the North West of England.

Within the region, a community of research radiographers exist that provide valuable expertise to our research communities, but as a collective resource is often invisible in coming together for both strategic and operational purposes or even to provide informal and formal support for one another.

This network has been created for radiographers and anyone involved or interested in supporting research radiography. This includes but is not limited to clinical practitioners, managers, leaders, researchers, and educators.

It provides a safe space to provide solutions and share best practice, raise the profile of specific radiographic research, organise knowledge-sharing events, and to increase the value, presence and profile of research radiography and its many applications, across the North West.

To join the network, or to find out more, please contact Dr Tracy O'Regan (tracyo@sor.org).
